The friendship between Mrs Two (Frances) and Mr Three (Me) began in the late 70's over a recipe for tuna salad served in my cafe on East Chestnut Street in Chicago. Frances assigned us numbers - faster than using names - over countless years we shared daily phone calls and numerous visits - and then, the conversations and visits stopped. How fortunate to have known this very special lady - my deepest sympathy to her family & many friends - With sadness, Mr Three

My mother and I met Frances in December at Casa Aldea. My mother was new to the place and Frances and her caregiver Paulette played a crucial role in my mother's adjustment. Frances was so warm and loving toward my mom. It eased a little of the heartache after my father's passing just months earlier. I'll never forget Frances holding my mom's hand and telling her how much she was loved or her concern over my mother's neuropathic pain. When Frances left Casa Aldea, she was sorely missed. This remarkable woman touched our lives in a deep and profound way. God rest her soul.
