his father was injured and later died, as the result of a farm accident. He took on many responsibilities of helping his mother with his sisters and working the farm. Despite the hardships, Jim had so many fond memories of life in rural Minnesota and loved to share stories of his youth & antics. Jim excelled in sports at Blue Earth High School in: Varsity Football, Basketball, Track & Baseball. After graduating in 1949, Jim took over the operation of Uncle Herb's farm and raised the top-producing dairy cows in Faribault County. During the Korean Conflict, Jim decided to enlist in the US Marine Corps, which meant the family had to move off the farm. He was proud to serve his country, even though he was not obligated to, as the only son of a widow. During his time in the Marines, he learned electronics and aircraft repair, training at both Camp Pendleton, California, and Jacksonville, Florida. He was later stationed at El Toro airbase in California. In 1953, Jim was discharged and returned to Blue Earth. He put his electronics training to good use by working for a local appliance company doing deliveries and repairs. Eventually, Jim was able to pursue his many loves: Skiing, dancing & Sharon Belau. He took a train to Sun Valley to learn to ski, danced through the summer to the Big Bands with Shari, and finally the two were married, June 18th, 1955, at Salem EUB Church in Blue Earth. They honeymooned in Aspen, and lived in Blue Earth, But not for long. Soon after taking a trip to visit Jim's sisters in San Diego, Shari decided that she preferred the beach to the farm. California was where she wanted to make their home, so along with Jim's mother and two younger sisters they relocated in 1956. Jim began working as an electrician in Hemet where their first child Jama was born. The little family moved to San Diego in the fall of 1957 and Jim entered the IBEW apprenticeship program while working for Balam and Stringer Electric in Bird Rock. Jim was a quick learner and became a journeyman electrician. By the early 60s he had obtained his contractor's license and in 1965 he started his own company, JW Electric. By this time, sons: Walter James, Thomas Paul, and Paul Allen had been added to the family. Then, Charles Andrew, and finally Christopher John completed the team in 1968. Jim worked hard as an electrical contractor and yet still had time to coach football, baseball, and Alpine ski racing. He was involved with Y-Indian Guides, PTA, his extended family, and church activities. The family took many memorable RV trips. Jim loved music especially because it gave him the opportunity to dance. He and Shari were often the center of attention swinging on the dance floor! Jim enjoyed golfing, but his greatest passion was skiing! He was deeply involved with the San Diego Ski Club and spent a great deal of time in Mammoth Mountain. However, his true love was Aspen, Colorado, where he purchased a property in 1969. He enjoyed many years with his family skiing on his favorite Aspen Mountain, Ajax until the age of 93. Jim's faith was the cornerstone of his life. He was always active serving in his church. Living a life defined by faith and service, he faced every challenge with prayer, perseverance, and good old elbow grease. Hard working and hard playing, Jim always strove to do his best. He excelled as a son, brother, farmer, athlete, teammate, husband, father, contractor, coach, uncle and friend. He lived his life as a Godly man and model of Christianity, which inspired many who knew him. Jim Wehsener has left a legacy of love for God, Family and Country. His memory will always guide those who loved him. We will miss Him—but we hold the joyous certainty that by FAITH, we will join Him in our heavenly Father's presence for eternity!

I have two, first Jim was a major influence in my life as the catalyst for my move to Mammoth in 1975 where I spent 40 years. Being a close friend of Jama, Jim and Shari took me (and several others) under their wing and parented me into the world of skiing. Many long weekend caravans to Mammoth ensued together inspiring me to leave San Diego and move to Mammoth. I am forever grateful for his coaching and friendship in my formative years. Second, I think of Jim often when I am shaving. Growing up in a Navy Officer's household, shaving first thing in the morning to be ready for "muster" was an Officer's habit impressed on me. An Officer in the Navy has to be presentable for the ranks at all times. One evening when I was hanging at the Wehsener's home, Jim came home from work and immediately went to shower and shave. I asked him why he shaved after work instead of prior as I thought should be normal. Jim looked at me and said "It depends on who you're shaving for." His top priority was Shari and his family and not the public. That exchange has stuck with me ever since and I try to live by the same philosophy of family first in everything I do. Thanks Jim...you will be missed and remembered. Rick Davis
